

It's estimated that over $4 billion is lost to online scams every year. Take a moment and let that figure sink in. That's over 4 BILLION dollars a year.

Scammers will happily take your money no matter what its loss means to you. They don't care if it leaves you homeless, hungry or without life-saving medicine for your children. All they're interested in is an easy payday, regardless of the damage it causes others, both mentally and financially.

ScamSurvivors.com was set up as a place to offer free, non judgmental help and advice. Our aim is to aid people in realizing they've been scammed and in recovering from their encounter with their scammer. Our volunteers have over 20 years' shared experience in dealing with scammers.

We have a forum where people can read about how scammers work, post their scammer's details to warn others, receive support and be part of an environment where they can feel safe among other scam survivors. We also have a chat room, where we offer more immediate help and a chance for people to simply hang out.

Our site has three main goals:

To make scammers' lives harder by exposing their details and scripts (or "formats" as they're known) to search engines.

Educating the public and thereby removing scammers' sources of income. Scams will continue as long as there are victims. Education is the key.

Helping people to see that, even after being scammed, they CAN move forward and things DO get easier.

ScamSurvivors is a caring community of volunteers from all walks of life. Some have been scammed, some came to the site from other avenues. All want to help those who have been scammed and spread the word to those who haven't.
